The heavens which leaned upon the mountain Tops, as if between them lay secrets too Vast for speech. Far overhead, threading the Pathway of the countless stars, its flaming Length thrust upward through immeasurable Fields of wide world-lighted space, flamed the bright Comet.

A golden-headed darling woke From her sweet dreamless slumber, her rosy Lids unclosing like the flower which opes Its petals to the sun, and with clasped hands, And blue eyes opened wonder-wide, she Upward looked. TOTAL WRECK.

"Times" Commissioner in the Mazes of the Mine.

Machinery and Offices,

This celebrated mine is situated in the Empire mining District, Pima county, Arizona, seven miles from Pantano San Pedro Station on the Southern Pacific Railroad. The town of Total Wreck takes its name from the mine, which was discovered and located by J. T. Dillon in the latter part of 1878. He was at that time in the employ of Vail & Harvey, of the Empire Stock Ranch, and the mine was discovered in the northern edge o It was opened a few feet in 1879, and some work was done in 1880, but a steady development of the mine was not naugurated until the commencement of Since then a shaft has been sunk to a depth of 326 feet, a tunnel made from the side of the hill, a distance of 248 feet, and besides about 1100 feet of An levels, drifts and winzes have been opening up immense deposits of rich ore. At 136 feet from the mouth of the tunnel where it connects with the shaft in the 200-foot level, the vein is 37 feet wide, at the 100-foot level a crosscut was made of 26 feet, all in ore. The geological formation is composed of operative normbyry, and sevenite the quartzite, porphyry and seyenite, the vein running northeast and southwest dipping slightly northwest. The depth of the shaft is 100 feet. The body of ore starts at the surface two feet wide, of ore starts at the surface two feet wide, gradually widening as it goes deeper, to 20 feet in width at the bottom of the shaft, all ore averaging $60 to the ton.

The west drift is running on the ore body about 30 feet—all ore. The east with the surface and or a long start of the start of drift is in about 20 feet, all ore also. Croppings are very large and stand out Capt. A. H. Wilcox, troppings are very large and stand out for a distance of over 900 feet. On the vein several openings have been made, all showing ore. The hoisting works are at the top of the incline shaft, and consist of two double cylinder engines with double drums 40 by 48 inches, and a locomotive boiler. Arrival of the Steamer "Saint Paul"

—A Perilous Voyage—Bishop Nestor's Body.

From the San Francisco Call, Oct. 30,!

The Alaska Commercial Company's steamer St. Paul, which sailed from Kodiak on the 20th of this month, arrived in port yesterday. On her uptrip, on September 7, about five days sail above Cape Flattery and eleven days from Oonalaska, she had very heavy weather for about twelve hours. At one time her bows were completely submerged for twelve or fifteen seed onds, and for a time it was thought she would never recover herself. The immense mass of water carried away her forward starboard rails, a lot of the forward ginger work, and badly wrecked the wheelhouse. A chicken-coop, containing four dozen chickens, went banging repeatedly against the house, knocking in boards and damaging things generally, and finally going overboard, each individual hen bidding the world adieu with all the power her lungs were capable of exercing. The vessel's three boats, all she possessed, were carried away. After the cessation of the storm the injuries were patched up and the vessel continued her way. Small boats were secured at her destination, and on the down trip pleasant weather was experienced. She brought down, among other freight, 1500 otter skins.

At Oonalaska the Corwin reported them that the body of Bishop Nestor, the Russian priest who com suicide by jumping overboard from the St. Paul on her last trip down, had been discovered on the north shore of Norton Sound, about a hundred miles down the coast from where the leap was made. Indians first discovered it and reported the fact at the nearest station of the Commercial Company. When secured the body was badly decomposed and stark naked. In all probability Indians stole the clothing, as the priest could hardly have taken them off while in the water before drowning. The body was taken to St. Michaels and buried.

The Late Senatorial Election in Or egon.

election of Hon. J. N. Dolph to the United States Senate from Oregon was very dramatic. For thirty days the balloting had continued, and 10 o'clock was the hour fixed for final adjournment. At seven minutes before 10, however, the hurried call of the roll on the seventy-fifth ballot commenced, and at its end the tally sheets showed that Dolph lacked seven or eight votes of election—no time left to ballot again. Then one after another of the Mitchell supporters changed his vote to Dolph, till as the clock was striking 10 the forty-sixth man had changed. The scene beggared description. The crowd, which filled the hall to the water tender to any man hand was here to be the control of the to its utmost capacity, and members as well, rose to their feet and greeted each well, rose to their feet and greeted each change with a ringing cheer. It was a supreme moment, and as there was an element of sadness in it, one after another—some choking back the moment's grief -said, "I-love my party before any man in it. I vote for Dolph." And even those whose nerves at the very moment of triumph tingled at the very moment of triumph tingle with the fierce joy of victory, brushed tears away. SAN FRANCISCO
